

Victim

This Sequence Diagram represents a victim user interacting with the Hurrican Relief System. After the victim signs in, they submit a relief request that is describing their location, what assistance is needed, and the number of people that were affected by their issue. The sytem will then log this as a new submitted request. From there, the victim is able to check on their requests status is it goes through the response process on the other end. They are also able to mark themselves as safe, independant of any request, and can cancel their request if they no longer need help. All in all, these cover the victim-facing side of the request lifecycle.
